Championship Basketball Camp

In an effort to emphasize skill development among younger basketball players we have come up with the Championship Basketball Camp. This is an intense day camp designed to equip players with the skill development tools needed to take their basketball game to the next level. We will have instructors who have played basketball at varying levels from college to professional.

Camp Director:

Corey Frazier

Corey Frazier played high school basketball at Charleston High School where he helped lead the Bluejays to three state championships. Corey then took his winning ways to Saint Louis University where he helped lead the Billikens to two NCAA tournament appearances. He was also named the conference defensive player of the year two times. Corey is now the head coach of the MRH Blue Devils where he captured back 2 back state championships 08 and 09 seasons. Corey was also named A.P. and MBCA Class 3 coach of the year.

Why camp?

This camp is designed to build better basketball players. We have used various resources to come up with the ten skill sets every basketball player needs to work on. Identifying the skill sets is just the beginning, we have come up with ways to equip each player with tools to improve each skill set once the camp is over. Our camp coaches have won state championships, played college basketball, played professional basketball and currently coach basketball. So not only do they have different experiences that they bring to the table they also have experience working with young basketball players.
